NEC Low Voltage

4 CEU Credits (TECES-10-0002)

The National Electrical Code (NEC) is an important component of low voltage systems and it's not just limited to fire and security alarm systems. This program will review the applicable provisions of the NEC for fire and security alarm systems, paging, intercom, nurse call, access control, and communication systems. Wiring methods including proper selection of conductors and cable assemblies, boring and notching, physical protection, firestopping, abandonment, and separation from other systems will be covered. There are no prerequisites for this Participants are requested to bring a copy of the 2008 National Electrical Code.
